THE GRAPEVINE

ST. JAMES PARISH • WILMINGTON, NC
WEEK OF JULY 5, 2020

THE REV. JAY SIDEBOTHAM

Independence Day 2020, a holiday weekend unlike any I recall.

For sure, we focus this weekend on the love we have for this nation, for ideals of freedom and equality that have shaped it, even if not realized for all Americans. But this year, as the Covid19 climbs in the news and in our neighborhoods, as the pain of victims of racial injustice is replayed on television, as uncertain economy adds to anxiety, how will we celebrate? As we observe this weekend, even through masks and at social distance, what does our faith have to say to us?

The Fourth of July, a.k.a., Independence Day, is one of a few secular holidays included in the lectionary of the church. (The others are Thanksgiving and Labor Day.) Along with that designation come scripture readings to inform our observance. It's striking that while the word "independence" does not seem to show up in scripture, the theme of freedom is all over the place. It is not so much freedom from restriction. It is not license. It is freedom for a new way of life, freedom to live the way of love, freedom worth celebrating. So let me highlight a few of those readings.

The selection from the book of Deuteronomy envisions a new land into which the children of Israel will be invited. Moses gives guidelines for what life in that land should look like. (See Deuteronomy 10:17-21) The God who led the people into that land is one who "executes justice for the orphan and the widow," so the children of Israel were to do the same, to love the stranger, to provide for them food and clothing. In many corners of our nation, along the borders, in the cities, blocks from our church, we have growth opportunities if we are to live into that vision. How might we embrace those growth opportunities as we observe Independence Day 2020?

From the New Testament letter to the Hebrews (11:8-16), a chapter described as the Hall of Fame of faith, the story of Abraham serves as our model. He looked forward to a "city that has foundations, whose architect and builder is God." The passage continues to cite other saints who held onto the promise, not thinking of a land left behind, but desiring a better country. How might we make that hope of a better country a reality as we observe Independence Day 2020?

Then, in the gospels, we read a portion from the Sermon on the Mount (Matthew 5:43-48) in which Jesus tells his disciples to love enemies, to pray for persecutors. It's an interesting way to celebrate our independence, our freedom. It's a timely word for a country that feels more divided, more partisan than I can ever remember. What would it mean for us to embrace love as the guiding principle for our common life, as a nation, a city, a church, a neighborhood, a family? How might we walk in the way of love as we observe Independence Day 2020?

If you've ever doubted that scripture is a lively word, these readings chosen for Independence Day quell those doubts. While many of us have experienced amazing blessings and privileges as citizens of this nation celebrated this weekend, may we at the same time observe this holiday (in our church, a holy day) by expanding those graces to all, perhaps participating in the conversations into which our fine Senior Warden, Steve Thomas, invites us, conversations about racial injustice and our church's response to such. May all we do, and may our celebration of this day be offered in the spirit of Jesus who said to his disciples: If the Son shall make you free, you shall be free indeed (John 8:36).

A LETTER FROM OUR SR. WARDEN, STEVE THOMAS

Good Morning, St. James!

As your Sr. Warden, I'm here this morning to give you a brief update on all the many things going on in the Parish and to talk with you about an important subject that concerns us all.

First, let me report that the Vestry held its Mid-Year Retreat last weekend and it was very good.

We reviewed all the progress and activity of 2020 so far and were very happy with it. Despite the COVID-19 pandemic, St. James has continued to push forward in many areas. Specifically, I want to highlight the work of three very special groups:

- The Rector Search Committee has been meeting at least weekly and working tirelessly through the process of carefully seeking St. James' next Rector. Thanks for your invaluable assistance to them through response to their calls for help – whether by completing the Parish survey or participating in a Focus Group.
- The Strategic Planning Group has been meeting for past 8 months and pouring countless hours into their work of visioning for us the future of St. James. They presented their final recommendations to the Vestry at the Retreat and we are considering those recommendations now.
- Finally, a subcommittee of the Vestry has been working very hard also on a new organization of how we support the ministries of St. James through additional empowerment of each ministry and support of lay leaders in the Parish. You will be hearing more about that improvement soon and we hope you are as excited as we are about what it will mean for St. James!

One other important topic the Vestry spent a lot of time discussing during the Retreat was that of racism. We shared very openly with one another our own perspectives and history with racism and it was very powerfully moving. The consensus was that St. James needs to more actively and consistently engage in the process of helping heal our community of the deep wounds of racism in whatever ways we can. That we are, in fact, called to do more to help all of God's people - including both our own members and those Wilmingtonians we do not yet know – to realize the love and value Jesus feels for all of us equally.

Again, we believe we are called to do more:

- Do More than to relegate the job of reconciliation and healing to just our Clergy.
- Do More to help educate our Parishioners on the inequalities that are currently present in our society.
- Do More than to simply watch while some members of our Parish devote energy to other groups' causes because we do not have one they can engage with.
- Do More than to remain quiet in our white steeple at the corner of 3rd and Market.

Simply put, we need to Do More to do than we are doing now.

As we heard in Cheryl's sermon last week, "Anything we do (or worse – don't do) will be seen as wrong in the eyes of some", but we on the Vestry do feel St. James needs to be a leader in promoting - through action - the racial healing of the Wilmington Area. And we are confident that we can be a leader, if we set our mind and energy to it. With the resources of our Parish, we know that there is not much we cannot help accomplish.

It may surprise you to know that in college I played on the N.C. State rugby team. Now, I was not very good (I was a good bit skinnier back then!), but I really enjoyed the sport and still enjoy watching it. For anyone who has seen rugby played (but does not understand it), watching it can be frustrating. Each team pushes to gain yard by yard, only to often lose them right back to the other team – and so it repeats until the will of one team pushes the ball in for a score. Sure, there are the occasional break-away scores that are quick and dramatic, but for the most part the team that wins the match simply has more perseverance and will to win than the other. The fight for human rights and equality has been a long one in the United States and has been full of both small victories and setbacks along the way. It is time that St. James throw our full weight behind the "team" fighting to promote racial healing in Wilmington and our Nation.

Based on this, I am announcing the forming of a Racial Healing Task Force here at St. James. The group will be composed of any Parish Member who shares a passion for the mission of healing and love and ability to share some of their time. The Task Force will begin meeting the week of July 6th and will be charged with brainstorming any and all ways St. James can make a true difference in this calling. The Task Force will present recommendations for action(s) to the Vestry by the end of July for consideration and approval and then we will engage the entire Parish in the execution of these plans. Some immediate actions recommended in the short-term may be put in place even sooner. If you are interested in joining this Team, please simply email me or call me at my contact information shown below and let me know as soon as possible. It's that simple, but it is up to you.

If you are unsure if it is time for you to engage in this "cause" I would point out that based on the myriad of national examples that our progress toward treating one another fairly is just not getting there with the same people fighting for it. People continue to die and suffer and live under less innate opportunity that you or I have been given, simply because they look different. This week we learned that racism is alive and well even within our Wilmington Police Department with Senior officers literally and verbally hoping for another Civil War so they can "set 'em back four or five more generations". In short, the need is urgent and we need to step up and be the change that is needed. Innocent people's lives depend on it.

Finally, I want to leave you with a thought. I want you to picture a community healed of racial divide and hate. Your community of Wilmington. I want you to picture where you see St. James in that picture. Where do you see yourself? From Matthew: "You are the light of the world. A city on a hill cannot be hidden." "Neither do people light a lamp and put it under a basket. Instead, they set it on a stand, and it gives light to everyone in the house." We are that city on a hill, fellow Parishioners. Help add your light to this world with us. I look forward to hearing from you!
